Performance review

In October, PHILEAS L/S EUROPE fell by 0.70%, recording 2.52% gains on the long portfolio and 3.22% losses on the short portfolio in a market that rose by 6.27% (Stoxx 600).

In Food and Beverages HPC (-36 bps), our long positioning on spirits and beer did not work well. The Heineken volumes were not as resilient as expected. We sold this position and replaced it with Symrise, whose business should suffer less from price elasticity. Pernod declined despite a reassuring publication. This consolidation does not affect our positive scenario for the stock.

In IT Services (-34 bps), the Software House reported good levels of activity, above analysts' expectations. However, Alten, Capgemini and Sopra underperformed the market, reflecting the market's already rather optimistic short-term positioning. We remain confident in the dynamism of these companies in an environment where digital transformation remains a priority for their clients.

In the Consumer sector (-23 bps), LVMH rebounded timidly in the wake of a good quarterly publication, while a number of hedges, particularly in textile distribution (H&M, Inditex, ABFoods), benefited fully from the return of risk appetite. However, their operating performance and growth prospects remain unspectacular.

In Media (+18 bps), Publicis was the best performer in the portfolio over the month. The repositioning carried out a few years ago on digital marketing is bearing fruit. It is reflected in the company's out-performance against its main competitors such as WPP. We believe that this trend should continue in the coming quarters and remain confident in the potential of this position given its still reasonable valuation.

In the automotive sector, we exited Michelin to build a position in Porsche. Positioned in the most attractive segment of the market, Porsche has good growth options (expansion of the addressable market through electrification, enrichment of the product mix) and solid profitability (strong pricing power, economies of scale with Volkswagen). If the group lacks real comparables, these qualities still seem to us modestly valued in absolute terms.
